AUTUMN.

BY GIPSY WILDE.

Shimmering, shadowy, dreamy days,
When our souls are borne above the earth,
And find in the vision of beauty before us,
A glorious second birth.

The time to dream of by-gone days,
As bright, as golden as now;
When the simple heart was yet unlearned
To knowledge, that traces the brow.

Days to dream of a love—years ago
Breathed in the Autumn hours—
That spangled the arch of the great world-night
With a host of sheeny stars.

Days to dream of the chequered Past,
Its age of wonder, and pain
Born of a glad experience,
Whose Earth repletion is vain.

Days when the soul is flooded with joy,
And Duty, hard and grey,
Is half forgot, when crowned with the light
Of a royal Autumnal day.

Days to long, with a wild unrest,
For our peerless ideal—Home;
To wander through clouds of golden mist
That illumine the pearly dome.

Days to dream rare, sweet dreams
Of a future yet undimmed;
When the True, the Good, the Beautiful,
Shall reign in the Temple of Mind.

Days when our souls and hearts o'erflow
With praise and love to Him
Whose beautiful gifts o'er the earth are set
Like stars, in the valley of sin.

Aye! days to dream of Heaven—
That far off spirit-land—
Where ranks of seraph sentry walk
The sheeny, argent strand.

GRAND CANON OF COLORADO.

REPORT OF COL POWELL'S EXPLORING EXPEDITION.

We take the following extracts from the report of Col. Powell, the Colorado explorer, who has just returned to his home in Illinois:

My great purpose was to explore for myself this wonderful curiosity—the grand Canon of Colorado. With this end in view I came from the mountains to Chicago last spring to procure outfit and build boats. Four of these were made on a model devised for the purpose of navigating canon streams; and taking them out to Green River Station, where the Union Pacific Railroad crosses the Green, I was ready to embark. There I had a party of nine men awaiting my arrival and anxious to enter the "great unknown" with me—men all experienced in the wild life of the country, and most of them in boating on dangerous streams. On the 24th of May we started. For a few days our way was through a river of low canons and small green valleys, until we reached the Uintah Mountains. Through this range the river has cut a winding channel, forming the Uintah system of canons. Near the lower end of this series Yampa river enters the Green by a canon. Further down, in a valley portion of the river, the Uintah and White come in. Below this point about thirty miles we enter still another series. Low walls of gray, buff and rust-colored sandstone shut us in. These walls slowly increase in height as we advance. The gray rocks are lost; dark red sandstones appear; the walls are broken down by lateral canons, increasing in number until we are in the heart of the "Canon of Desolation." Sometimes these lateral canons are so crowded that the rock between them stands as a narrow wall, hundreds of feet high, the end toward the main canon. Some lateral canons have their own lateral canons—a third series—cutting the walls into sections, whose towering summits, though large enough to support cathedrals, seem scarcely to furnish footing for a man. Two thousand feet—three thousand feet over-head is the summit of the walls, while rocks and crags and peaks rise higher, and still higher away back from the river, until they reach an altitude of nearly 5000 feet. These rusty gray, and dark red sand-stones have no beauty of color. A few greenish gray cedars are seen, looking not like pyramids of evergreen spray, but like clumps of knotty war clubs, bedecked with spines. These, with a little sage, constitute all the verdure.

We next ran through Coal Canon, and passed the mouth of Little White river, then a valley region, passed the mouth of the San Rafael, and we enter Still Water Canon. The river winds through this with a quiet current as if in no haste to leave this beautiful canon carved out of the orange sandstone. All along its walls domed alcoves and amphitheatres have been cut out of the solid rock; grottoes and caves abound, the narrow lateral canons, channels of rivulets, born of a shower and born again of a shower, are cut as clefts in the rocks, and at every curve on the inner side is a spot of willow-bordered meadow. Then the walls grow higher, the river swifter, and we glide around to the junction of the Grand and Green.—Here the walls are nearly thirteen hundred feet high. But away back from the river are lateral canons and canon valleys, the floors of which are about the same altitude as the immediate walls of the main canon, and the walls of this upper set are hundreds of feet high. Lateral to the second there is often a third series, with floors at a greater altitude than the floors of the second; then the country back is cut into a labyrinth of canons. The main walls at the junction are not vertical, but have the slope of broken rocks tumbled down, while the lateral canons have mostly vertical walls with a sloping talus at the base. We remained at this point several days, then rowed out into Cataract Canon. Soon we heard the roar of waters, and came upon a succession of rocky rapids and cataracts; over some of these we were compelled to make portages; usually only the cargoes were carried over the rocks, and the boats were let down with lines, but now and then boats and all had to be carried. When these rapids and cataracts were unobstructed by rocks, or where there was any passage, we were able to run them, never finding any fall greater than nineteen feet in this canon.—Sometimes the waves below would roll over a boat and fill the open part, but they could not sink it, as each one was decked fore and aft, and so had a water-tight compartment at either end. Now and then a boat would roll over, but clinging to its sides until they could right it, the men would swim to the shore, towing it with them.

We found much difficulty in the whirlpools below. It was almost impossible to get out of them at times. They would carry us back under the falls, dash us against the rocks or send whirling down the river. For twelve days we toiled through this canon, stopping once to measure the altitude of its walls near the highest points, and finding it nearly 2500 feet. This was at the axis of a vast fold in the strata, and from that point the upper rocks slowly came down with a gentle dip to the southwest until we reached the foot of the canon, forty-five miles from its head. A rocky valley canon was found here on the left, and the river made a bend around a sharp point on the right, which point was set with ten thousand crags and ragged rocks. We called it Mille-crag Bend, and sweeping around this in a rapid current our boats shot into Narrow Canon, down which we glided at almost railroad speed, the walls rising vertically from the water 1300 feet high at its head, and coming down to high water-mark at the foot, seven miles below, where the Dirty Devil, a river of mud, entered from the right. Now we had come again to the red and orange sandstone, and the walls were of beautiful bright rock, low at first, but, as we cut down through the strata, rising higher and higher. Now and then, on this and that side, the rocks were vertical from the water's edge; but usually they were cut into mounds, and cones, and hills of solid sandstone, rising one above the other as they stretched back in a gentle slope for miles. These mounds have been cut out by the showers from the bright orange rock, and glitter in resplendent beauty, under the mid day sun. Hour after hour we gazed entranced on them as they faded in the perspective and retreated to the rear, for the rivers was gentle though swift, and we had but to steer our boats, and on we went through this land of beauty and glory.

On the 31st of July we reached the mouth of the San Juan, at the foot of Mound Canon, and went into camp for a day or two's rest. Then we started again. We had now run once more into the dark red and chocolate colored sandstones, with slate colored beds below; these usually formed vertical walls, occasionally terraced or broken down, and from the crest of these the orange mounds sloped back, but variegated by monuments, now vertical, now terraced, now worn in steep slopes; others still combining these forms and set with towers and pinnacles. These monuments stood alone or in groups, and spread over the landscape as far as the eye could reach. The little valley of Paria River terminates this canon, making it about 100 miles long. We named it Monument Canon. Here the river had cut through the sandstones and reached the limestones below, the same geological formation as that of Cataract Canon, and as we advanced the channel was cut into these new strata.—We entered between walls low, but vertical, that gradually increased in altitude to the foot, where they were 2900 feet high, terraced and broken into crags above. Half way down the canon we found the lower strata appearing as marble; they were white, and gray, and slate colored, then pink and purple, and brown, and other strata variegated with these colors, until at last we had four hundred feet of marble walls, mostly vertical from the water's edge. These were fretted by the waters, embossed with strange devices, and polished into beauty. Where there were patches of marble floor left bare by low water, basins have been carved out by the whirlpools of the flood season, and were filled with pools of clear water in beautiful contrast to the red mud of the river. Cool springs gushed from the rocks, sparkling, foaming cascades plunged into marble fonts, and in contrast to these after every shower, cascades of red mud poured over the walls from the red sandstone above, with a fall of hundreds of feet. We called this Marble canon; it terminated at the mouth of the Little Colorado, and was about thirty-six miles long.

Here a short rest, and then we pulled on the homestretch—not a very short one, either—nearly 300 miles by river to mouth of the Virgin. The lower members of this carboniferous formation are of dark, rust-colored sandstones, sometimes almost black. We soon ran through these, and through silurian red sandstone, and about fifteen miles below the mouth of the Little Colorado struck the granite.—From the mouth of that stream to the mouth of the Virgin, our objective point, the general course of the river is to the west; but it makes three great curves to the south, and three corresponding curves to the north.—At the extremity of the southern curves the wall are granite at the base, reaching to an altitude of 800 feet.—This usually rises from the water in almost vertical cliffs, set above with ragged crags; then a sloping terrace 100 to 500 yards wide; then walls of sandstone and marble towering 200 or 300 feet toward the heavens. In the northern bends the marble comes down to the water's edge. In the southern bends the river runs ranging through a narrow gorge filled with rapids and cataracts, often falling at a plunge from 5 to 20 feet, the greatest being 22 feet. Over these we usually had to run, as the granite walls rarely gave foothold, though some portages were made. The roar of the cataract could always be heard for half a mile or more, so that we never came upon them unapprised of danger. In the last great bend to the south, we came upon a series of cataracts and rapids crowded together into a distance of three-fourths of a mile; a stream came down through a narrow canon on either side, and above their mouths we found a foothold to land; so we stopped to examine,

On the river there seemed to be great danger, and no portage could be made. Coming on in the morning, the day was spent in exploring and trying to decide some method of getting over the difficulty. I found that we could climb to the summit of the granite 800 feet high, and, passing along the terrace, could descend to a point below; but it would require ten days to get our boats and cargoes over, and we had scant five days' rations. When I returned to camp at night, I announced to the men that we must attempt to run it. After supper one of them came to me and asked if I was willing that he and two others should leave the river and walk out over the mountains; they thought that they could climb out of the canon, up the channel of the right hand creek. Of course I objected, but they were determined to go. An hour's talk failed to shake their resolution; so I sat up all night, made observations for the latitude and longitude of that point, and then walked up and down a little sand beach until morning. On the morrow they were still in mind to go, and I hastily fitted out the little party with guns, ammunition, and a small store of rations. In the meantime those going down the river were ready to start. Not being able to man it, I tied up one of the boats and abandoned it.

When all was ready we shook hands and some tears were started, as each party thought the other was going to destruction. "Good bye," and away went our boats over the first cataract, then among the rocks, and over the second to the left of a huge rock and whirlpool, and over the third, and shot into an eddy below. The boats were half-filled with water, but that had happened many times before; we really found it less dangerous than a hundred we had run above. The party that was left sat on the cliffs and watched us over, and we went into camp and waited two hours, hoping they would join us with the boat left tied to the rocks above; but we never saw them again, and they are yet unheard from. The names of these men were, O. G. Howland, S. Howland and W. H. Dunn. That afternoon we passed one more dangerous rapid, and then had fair sailing to the foot, where the river debouched into Mormon Valley, so named by our party.

This ended the exploration of the Grand Canon of the Colorado; its head at the confluence of the Little Colorado, its foot at the entrance of the river to Mormon valley—its length about 238 miles, its altitude from 2500 to 4000 feet A number of clear streams flow in from either side; the largest coming down from the Buckskin Mountains on the north, which we named Right Angle River. I have mentioned the terraces of the southern bends; these have been sites of ancient Indian villages inhabited by a race of diminutive people now almost extinct. Their little cluster of houses found on the south side of the river were 800 or 1000 feet above the water. They were built of stone laid in mortar, and seem to have had reservoirs of water. Fragments of their pottery are found scattered about in great profusion, and deeply worn foot-paths leading from village to village, or down to the river, or up to the summit plain, were frequently seen. On the northern bend their dwellings were near the river.—Some of these ruins seem to be centuries old, and others to have been inhabited by the present generation; the latter were found near the mouth of the Little Colorado. Other ruins and fragments of pottery were found in the canons above, and away up in the valley of the Uintah. Only a few villages of these interesting people now remain in the country to the southeast.

Below this canon the river and adjacent country had been explored by Mormon parties, and here ended the "Great Unknown," no longer thus to be designated. The whole region was one of great scenic beauty and grandeur; the constant change in geological structure made a constant change in scenery. The high walls inclosing a tortuous river shut off the view before, and, as we advanced, it opened out, ever bringing into view some new beauty or glory. The impression of this scenery was the rather accented by a little anxiety, the shadow of a pang of dread ever present to the mind.

Prof. Mantegazza looked for sixteen hours without winking, through a microscope in search of the beginnings of organic existence in a solution of his preparation. He didn't find them.

At a recent funeral in New York the band which attended the corpse to the grave played the lively tune of "Up in a Balloon," and on returning from the cemetery played "When Johnny Comes Marching Home Again."

A Remarkable School-Mistress.

Dr. N. T. True, School Superintendent of Oxford county, Maine, has made a special report concerning a school mistress in that State and her work.—Her name is Vesta Howard, and she teaches in the town of Bethel. She is fifty-five years old, and has taught seventy terms of private and public school. Yet, says Dr. True, she is far in advance of most young teachers, instead of being antiquated. The following are extracts from the account of her school:

"She commenced her afternoon session by saying that she did not think it best to set the children immediately to work upon their studies, because they had been at their play, and were not in the best condition for close application. She therefore took a second Progressive Reader and read a story as badly as she could, and let them correct her faults. She then read it correctly, and as one would talk, and all eyes were fixed on her. She then called a register of scholars by numbers, who answered by their names and ages. Among them was a Winfield Scott, General Fremont and other prominent names, and as they were announced she had a word to say about their history, without scarcely stopping her register. She then made them all take their books out of their seats together, without noise. No slates were to hit the desk, or books to be shuffled. She selects a Captain for each of the smaller classes, who steps out and calls the class out by numbers. Books are all held alike. This makes them executive scholars.

"In reading, small children repeat the same word till they can command it in the sentence, and then they read it in concert. In spelling they fold their arms with the book under the left arm. Sometimes she spells the words and they pronounce them.—This was a fine exercise. She made them pronounce correctly, cow, bow, now, bow, row. They made a graceful bow in leaving for their seats.—Each class has a definite time for studying a lesson, and the teacher calls their attention to it at the moment.

"They came out to read with folded arms, read with strong emphasis, and naturally. She makes them look at her lips, and she pronounces her words round and full, and makes them do the same after her. While hearing a class reading, if a class is studying geography, she will suddenly call their attention to some point in the lesson, and then go right on with the reading.—She will call upon a scholar by surprise to rise and tell something about the lesson she is studying. This was done with great promptness. This kept them on the alert.

"She has bouquets all around the room, and maps and pictures on the walls, to make the room look pleasant. Not a book or pencil is heard prominently.

"She questions them in what they have read. In spelling, they give familiar definitions in their own language, and are required to pronounce each letter fully and forcibly."

How Small Expenditures Count.

Five cents each morning. A mere trifle. Thirty-five cents per week.—Not much, yet it would buy coffee and sugar for a whole family. $18.26 a year. And this amount invested in a savings bank at the end of each year, and the interest thereon at six per ct., computed annually, would in twelve years amount to more than $670.—Enough to buy a good farm in the West.

Five cents before breakfast, dinner and supper; you'd hardly miss it, yet fifteen cents a day; $1.05 per week.—Enough to buy a wife or daughter a dress. $54 60 a year. Enough to buy a small library of books. Invest this as before, and in twenty years you have over $3,000. Quite enough to buy a good house and lot. Ten cents each morning; hardly worth a second thought; yet with it you can buy a paper of pins or a spool of thread.—Seventy cents per week; 'twould buy several yards of muslin. $36.50 in one year. Deposit this amount as before, and you would have $1,340 in twenty years; quite a snug little fortune.—Ten cents before each breakfast, dinner and supper—thirty cents a day.—It would buy a book for the children. $2.10 a week. Enough to pay for a year's subscription to a good newspaper. $109.59 per year. With it you could buy a good melodeon, on which your wife or daughter could produce sweet music to pleasantly while the evening hours away. And this amount invested as before would in forty years produce the desirable amount of $15,000.

Boys, learn a lesson. If you would be a happy youth, lead a sober life, and be a wealthy and influential man, instead of squandering your extra change invest in a library or a savings bank.

If you would be a miserable youth, lead a drunken life, abuse your children, grieve your wife, be a wretched and despicable being while you live, and finally go down to a dishonored grave, take your extra change and invest it in a drinking saloon.

☞ If you carve a turkey and it should be tough, and slip off the dish through your awkwardness, and it falls into lady's lap, it is reckoned polite to make a bow and say, "Please, ma'am, may I trouble you for that turkey again?"

The Globe.

HUNTINGDON, PA.

Wednesday morning, Nov. 10, 1869

WM. LEWIS, HUGH LINDSAY, } Editors.

The "Globe" has the largest number of readers of any other paper published in the county. Advertisers should remember this.

☞ The Guerrilla Organ tries to make a defence for the guerrilla chief, Dr. Orlady, in its last issue. That's right—the Doctor is master of the "situation" and his programme must be worked up to by the whole clan or some of them will find themselves "dropped" in the next campaign.

☞ "It is only a question of which is the Republican party."—Guerrilla Organ.

A question of which is the Republican party—the party that supported and voted Republican party nominations, or the guerrillas and their influence voting with the Democrats?—Cremer's mind must be getting very muddy—no wonder, he is in very muddy water.

☞ The Guerrilla Organ can see nothing in Dr. Orlady's first letter except that he was working for his own success. Perhaps Mr. Cremer has seen something more in the second letter, and can see more in others to be published. The Doctor's "programme" was always a full ticket selected by himself and a small "ring" of friends, and his instructions to his duped delegates would always be to support his programme—his ticket, from top to bottom.

☞ The new Legislature is superior to the last one, in point both of character and ability.—Pittsburg Gazette.

We doubt it, for several of the "roosters" of the last two winters, who do the "setting up," have been re-elected, and will be on hand for any "jobs" that may be presented. They would corrupt any body of men were they as pure as angels, if allowed to associate with them. Until our Legislature is purged of these notoriously corrupt buffoons and blackguards, who violate law, and cheat justice almost every moment of their rotten existence, we cannot expect better or purer Legislation. We shall see.

☞ The Republican district and county nominees defeated by Orlady, Scott, Cremer, Dorris, Blair & Co., were as much the nominees of the Republican party as were Gov. Geary and Judge Williams, and yet the guerrillas have the impudence to claim to be good Republicans. If Republicans generally throughout the State had been no better, the Democracy would have carried every county and completely straightened out the Union Republican party. Andy Johnson was a good Republican—so was Ed. Cowan —about as good as the Guerrilla faction, only a little more honest.

☞ The Globe and Journal of last week again read Senator Scott, Col. Dorris, Capt. Blair and other prominent Republicans out of the party.—Orlady & Co's. Guerrilla Organ.

Read Scott, Dorris, Blair and other prominent Republicans out of the party? Why, you jack—their own act of defeating the party read them out. They placed themselves outside of the party as soon as they agreed to defeat the ticket put in nomination by the Republican County Convention — the same Convention that you, Mr. Cremer, asked to nominate you for Prothonotary. Out of the party? Of course you are. "Scott, Dorris, Blair, and other prominent Republicans," including yourself, are just as much out of the Republican party as the Democrats you worked with and voted for. There is no rule in politics by which any of you can claim to be party men. Your party is Doctor Orlady's party.

More Light.

We ask the attention of our readers to the following paragraph from the last Journal & American:

"Old Relics.—The Globe has a propensity for exhuming and re-publishing old "confidential" documents, and we must say that some of them have a very familiar look. We have a few of the same sort, which might be very interesting to certain parties, but we presume that the over-sensitive nerves of Messrs. Cremer, Scott, and others, could scarcely bear the information that, in their crusade against a secret league, they have been made use of by the sworn leaders of another secret political order for the purpose of defeating the Republican party, one of whom boasted on the street, a few days ago, that "he used them for that purpose." We have the information in our possession, and whether we enlighten them and the public on the subject hereafter depends to a certain extent on the good behavior of certain parties."

There is considerable light in the above, and we have no doubt the Republican party of the county will soon see how shamefully hundreds were humbugged by the guerrillas during the late campaign. It has been our honest conviction for years that Orlady was at the head of a secret combination of office seekers and party rulers, and the evidence coming to light every day shows that our conviction was right. The defeat of a part of our ticket was the work of the combination, with the assistance of such outsiders as were indirectly influenced by the leaders. No wonder that some of our prominent citizens who were used to assist in the defeat of good Republicans feel very bad—and will feel worse before they get back to a respectable standing in the party again.

R. W. Mackey, the present State Treasurer, will be a candidate for re-election.

That "Sett-off."

The Guerrilla Organ last week published what it said was "A Sett-off" to Dr. Orlady's letter. The "sett-off" is as follows:

Ront. Laird, Esq.: October 4, 1866.

Dear Sir:—I wish either you or Graffus would come down on Saturday, the day of the show. I am anxious to see one of you, to fix up final arrangements and to have a consultation.

Yours, &c., Wm. H. Woods.

Now, it does not matter materially what the "final arrangements" were to be, or what the "consultation" was to be about—whether it was Porter Island Oil Stock, law, or politics. The important question is, where and how did Mr. Cremer get the letter? Mr. Laird did come down on show day in that year, and in the struggle to get show tickets at the show wagon his pocket was picked of a pocket-book containing some money, notes, orders, and the letter published in the Guerrilla Organ. Mr. Laird advertised in the Journal & American, at the time, the loss of his property, but not until he saw the above letter published could he get on the track of his pocket-book or its contents. Mr. Laird called upon Mr. Cremer on Friday to learn how the letter got into his possession. Mr. Cremer declined to give him the name of the person he received it from.—Here is a pretty "situation" for the purifiers to be in.

We give place to the following from Mr. Laird:

Messrs Editors:—In last week's Republican I see there is published a private note from W. H. Woods to myself. I wish to state that I did not furnish that note to Mr. Cremer for publication, but the note was stolen from me under the following circumstances: The note in question, requested me to call and see Mr. Woods on the day of the show, October, 1866.—I was in Huntingdon on that day and went to the show; while in the crowd seeking admittance into the show, my pocket book was stolen. In my pocket book, I had a number of valuable papers, some money and the note written by Mr. Woods, a copy of which was published last week's Republican. Seeing that note in the Republican is the first trace I have had of my stolen pocket book. I called upon Mr. Cremer and asked him who furnished him that note, stating that it had been stolen from me, and that I wished and intended to bring the thief to justice.—Mr. Cremer either could not or would not state where or how he got the note—as far as I am concerned, I am determined to know who stole my pocket book, as I had in it about $1700 worth of paper and $13 in money.

Yours, &c., R. A. LAIRD.

Working up to "My Programme."

LETTER NO. 3.

The "prominent Republicans" who helped to do the dirty work this fall will see by reading the following letter how the Chief of the guerrilla clan managed to control Conventions. Of course the Chief was not seen in the fight during the late campaign—he occupied a position in the rear from which he issued his orders to his clan all over the county. "Prominent Republicans" were only tools of the guerrilla Chief—nothing more, nothing less.

STRICTLY PRIVATE.

Petersburg, May 10, 1866.

Friend Shearer: Dear Sir:—I drop you a confidential note which I trust you will communicate to no person. The suggestion I now make is made in good faith, and I trust something valuable may come of it. It is nothing more nor less than for you to become a candidate for Register and Recorder. The office is one that would prove of great value to you. A man in that office is always re-elected.—Your better plan would be to declare yourself a candidate, get Brice Blair, Clymans, Robison, and all those persons in that quarter to declare for you Have the delegates from Tell to vote for every candidate from top to bottom that you may suggest. Don't mention my name to a human soul. I will give you a list of prominent candidates, and it may be advisable to throw to them. Don't attempt to do anything special except in Tell; get those delegates to commit themselves to your interest exclusively. The candidates who I think will be successful are Capt. Blair, Congress; H. S. Wharton, Legislature; D. Clarkson, Associate Judge; J. R. Simpson, Prothonotary; H. Shearer, Reg. and Rec.; Abr. Renner, Co. Com.; Oliver Etnier, Director Poor; K A. Lovell, District Attorney. We will work up to this programme all over the county, and I know we can make it succeed. There will be an ample share of soldiers on the ticket. Profess great strength to candidates; don't tell them who you rely upon. Be careful that they don't connect you with factions. Keep aloof from every body who are candidates. Blair will chime in with your suggestions. Let me hear from you soon. I will meet you after some time at Mt. Union and compare notes. Be reserved in regard to the prospects of all candidates. Burn this letter at once. Yours truly, H. Orlady.

☞ The Richmond Whig does not speak to Northern Democrats in an over-encouraging way. It thinks that one effect of the Ohio and Pennsylvania elections will be the temporary dissolution of "the Democratic party." How many such "temporary dissolutions" the party will be able to stand with the least hope of subsequent re-solidification, we do not undertake to determine. If a man were sick unto death it would be rather cold comfort if a friend should approach his bedside and kindly whisper: "The sooner you die, my dear sir, the better for you. Don't be frightened—it's 'only 'temporary.' It's 'discouraging,' "certainly, but the sooner you go thro' "with it the better. You can have no "idea how fresh and lively you will feel "after it. So just go ahead with your "dying, my good fellow, and you will "be a sound man to-morrow."

Death of George Peabody, Esq.

A cable telegram announces the death of George Peabody, the eminent Philanthropist and true christian gentleman, in London, on November 4th. His death, though sudden, was not unexpected, as he had been in failing health for some time. He was born in the town of Danvers, Massachusetts, on the 18th of February, 1795. At the age of seventeen he left Danvers, where he was for several years employed as clerk to Mr. Proctor, a grocer, and shortly afterwards went to Georgetown in the District of Columbia, where he was in business with his uncle, John Peabody. At the end of two years he engaged in the wholesale dry-goods business with Mr. Elisha Riggs. Being successful, the firm removed from Georgetown to Baltimore. In 1827 Mr. Peabody made his first trip to Europe, to purchase goods. On the retirement of Mr. Riggs from the partnership, it became necessary for him to make annual visits to the old world. In 1837 he removed to England, where he remained, occasionally visiting the United States. The incidents of his life are manifold, his benefactions great, and the love and respect which he has elicited from the objects of his bounty, is fully attested by the people of both hemispheres. Unlike the many philanthropists who have preceded him, he did not await the hour of his final separation to bestow his gifts and charities, but while he lived, wherever and whenever he saw that the hand of brotherly love should be extended, he was ready to give. Would that the world was full of George Peabodys.—The extent of his benefactions may be summed up as follows:

To the Institute at Baltimore	$1,400,000
To the Institute at Danvers	200,000
To the poor of London	1,750,000
To the Southern Educational Fund	2,500,000
To Harvard University	150,000
To Yale College	150,000
To Washington College	60,000
To other objects	386,000
Making a total of	$6,596,000

Besides this he gave to his relatives the sum of $1,400,000. Great interest is manifested to know what disposition he has made of the fortune he accumulated in London, and which is variously estimated at from twenty to thirty millions of dollars.

☞ The result of the elections on Tuesday last, is as follows: In Massachusetts, a Republican Governor was elected. New York went Democratic by 12,000—the New York city "repeaters" having full sway. New Jersey and Maryland went Democratic as usual. In Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and West Virginia the Republicans carried the day.

Hon. H. C. Johnson, of Crawford, and Hon. B. B. Strang, of Tioga, are prominently mentioned in connection with the next Speakership of the House of Representatives. Mr. Johnson was a member a few years ago, and served one term as Speaker. Mr. Strang enters upon his third term in the House this winter, and was prominent as a candidate for Speaker last winter. Both are gentlemen of ability and either would make a good Speaker. We also hear other gentlemen named in the same connection. The contest will eventually narrow down between Strang and Johnson.

☞ The interest exhibited in the attempt to connect President Grant with Fisk, Gould, and Corbin, in the gold conspiracy, has somewhat subsided, but it still remains the subject of general comment. It has been ascertained that the only basis for the alleged complicity of the President is the fact that when he sold his house in this city to Gen. Sherman, he gave Mrs. Grant $12,000 of the proceeds.—Corbin was there at the time on his wedding trip, and Mrs. Grant placed the money in his hands to be invested in building lots in the suburbs of New York City. This is the only money transaction that has transpired between them since President Grant was inaugurated, and it will probably be the last, as the President does not hesitate to declare that in the future he will have no social communication with Corbin whatever. It is probable that Corbin used the money thus placed under his control to impress Fisk and Gould with the belief that he was acting as Mrs. Grant's broker, a belief which was suddenly dispelled when the order was issued to sell Government gold, and Corbin's transactions were discovered.—*N. The Nurseries of Crime.—On Sunday night last the dens in the lower portion of the city seemed to have poured out their whole stock of disciples of Bacchus. About the same time another of the disciples, after several unsuccessful attempts, finally managed to enter a Fifth street car. At Fifth and south a wife and mother were pleading with a drunken husband, trying to induce him to go home. Still further down, at the corner of Shippen street, were congregated the crowd of loafers who make the night hideous with profanity, and who are a terror to ladies obliged to pass in going and returning from church. Another square further down, a mother pleading only as a mother can, with a son, sunk so deep in degradation as to heap curses loud and deep upon the woman who gave him life and sustenance. What a terrible picture to look upon on a Sabbath evening, within a few squares. Can any one wonder that crime stalks red-handed through a community so depraved?—Phila. Day.

There is a pretty story told of one of the ancestors of the Empress Eugenie, which is probably new to many of our readers. It seems that many years ago there lived in an Andalusian town a German toy-maker, who had a charming daughter. This young maiden was famous for her beauty and virtue, both of which attracted the attention, and eventually won the love, of the young son of the Count Montijo. She met his advances with the cry—"marriage before love." His affection for her was an honest one, and in spite of his father's obstinate refusal he married her. The old Count refused the young pair any assistance, so that their sufferings promised to be very great. But the two elder brothers of the young husband dying, the old Count had but the prodigal child, whom he took back to his heart and purse. The Countess of Montijo was the mother of Eugenie of France.

FARM NO. 1.

A splendid tract of land, (formerly owned by Walter Graham, Esq.,) beautifully located on the Huntingdon and Indiana turnpike, within one and a half (1½) miles of the Penna. canal, in Canoe Valley, Blair county, one of the best grain growing valleys in the State. This farm contains 300 ACRES of the best limestone land, perfectly clear, and in a high state of cultivation. The buildings consist of a large Mansion House and other dwelling houses, a large bank barn, a grist mill with (water power,) and all necessary outbuildings for the farm.

An unfailing stream of pure water flows through the tract, and the house is supplied by a fountain pump with good spring water. There are two good apple orchards on the premises. There are four churches within one and a half miles, and the post office at Yellow Springs and school house within one-half mile of the property. Taken altogether, this is one of the best located farms in Blair county.

FARM NO. 2.

Situate on Clover creek, in Woodberry township, Blair county, one and a half (1½) miles east of the town of Williamsburg, containing 140 ACRES of good limestone land in good farming order. On this farm is erected a good stone Dwelling House, a stone spring house, a bank barn, a carriage house and corn cribs, and all the necessary outbuildings. An uncommonly fine spring of limestone water is near the house, and beautifully enclosed with wall of cut stone. There is on this tract an excellent apple orchard in good bearing condition. Schools and churches convenient.

FARM NO. 3.

Situate on the Juniata river one mile east of Hollidaysburg, Pa., containing about 160 ACRES, on which is erected a brick Dwelling House and bank barn, together with all the necessary outbuildings. Part of this farm is a rich alluvial soil: the other part good, limestone—both in good state of cultivation. On this farm is also a good apple orchard. Its proximity to the thriving town of Hollidaysburg makes this a very desirable location.

TERMS.—One-third of the purchase m ney to be paid on confirmation of the sale, the other two thirds in two equal annual payments with interest, to be secured by the bond and mortgage of the purchaser.

There are 290,000 threshing machines in the United States, to say nothing of "schoolmarms" and the "old folks at home."

Robert Bonner, of New York, offers $100,000 for a horse which will trot as fast as Dexter—a mile in 2.21½.

Most of last week was like Indian Summer. The commencement of this week was equally and chilly.

Wm. H. Swartz, of Altoona, has taken charge of the local columns of the Beaver Local. He knows how to do it.

If street crossings are made to walk on, why is it that they are so often blockaded by horses and wagons, and timid pedestrians compelled to flounder through the mud?

The Broad Top manslaughter case is now on trial before our court. A large number of witnesses have been summoned, and their testimony may prolong the trial several days.

A photographer in Massachusetts was recently visited by a young woman who with sweet simplicity asked: "How long does it take to get a photograph after you leave your measure?"

Subscribers who took the Globe for the campaign can renew subscription at any time. The time is past when newspapers could be given away. The paper-maker's cry of "cash" has taught us another tune.

An anatomical observer asserted a few days since that there were 480,981 feathers on the wings of a butterfly. "I don't believe it," said one of his hearers. "Then count them for yourself," was the reply.

Harry Chamberlain, of Alexandria, has leased the Franklin House and is now running it. He knows how to keep a hotel, a fact all who will give him a call will be sure of. Mr. S. D. Heffner was former landlord.

Farmers should attend to having all their implements well taken care of for protection during the winter. Nothing is so indicative of a careless farmer as to see the various tools scattered over the farm. A little labor now will save a great deal of waste.

The Union Steam Bakery and Candy Manufactory on Moore street, back of the Castilian Garden, is one of the objects of interest that strangers should not fail to see. The gentlemanly proprietors, Messrs. Summers & Reilly, will be happy to receive calls of visitors or orders from patrons.

Our legal friend Thos. W. Myton, Esq., whose card appears in this issue, has taken up quarters in the office of J. Sewell Stewart, Esq., where he will be pleased to attend with promptness to any business he may be entrusted with. Tom is a good fellow, and we bespeak for him a liberal share of patronage.

Some people don't believe in advertising—says an exchange—because they say "nobody reads the papers." But let them get involved in some scandal, and you will find them flying around to the newspapers offices with the request, "please don't mention that little affair, it's a mistake; I don't want my name published all over the country." O, no.

During the fiscal year ending with the 30th of June last, there were delivered by carriers in the fifty principal cities and towns of the United States, 80,071,052 mail letters, 18,390,627 local or drop missives, and 21,954,892 newspapers. We are certainly a reading and writing people.

A little son of Mrs. Weaver, a widow lady of Hollidaysburg, while leading a colt with the halter round his wrist, the animal ran off, dragging the boy several hundred yards, terribly mashing his face and cutting his skull, besides otherwise badly bruising his body. At last accounts the boy was lying in a very critical condition.

The Bellefonte National gives a complete history of the erection of the Glass Works at that place. In 1866 a party of gentlemen went to Pittsburgh and after some consultation with a leading glass manufacturer there, returned to Bellefonte, and in a short time a company was formed with a capital basis of $50,500. The concern was leased on the 1st of January last to J. V. Thomas & Co., and they turned out 17,000 boxes of glass from the 18th of January to the 1st of July, when a new blast was put in, and now from 900 to 1000 boxes of glass, of all sizes, are turned out per week. A force of 57 persons is employed; the amount of material used daily is: Soda, 1 ton, lime 1 ton, coal 10 tons, wood 1 cord, and 1000 feet of lumber for boxes. We would like to see just such a factory erected at Huntingdon, which is as well if not better adapted to such an interest as Bellefonte.

"Signor Rubini," a conjuror, exhibited here for six nights, some two weeks ago and left without paying all his bills—because he did not make money enough to pay them. He went to Altoona to try his luck there, some of his Huntingdon creditors following him and helping, by exposing his short-comings here, to prevent him from making money there, and he left there as he left Huntingdon, in debt to printers and others. He next arrived at Johnstown, where his failures here and at Altoona had been made known, and he failed there in making expenses, and in his attempt to get away without paying his debts he got into a fight with a constable and finally found himself and his two female assistants in the jail of the county, where they will remain until they are let out to save costs to the county.—"Rubini" left us as he left others, but we did not think we could get our money by publishing to the world that he had left town without paying up, and using our influence to prevent him from making expenses at other places. We took Rubini's promise to pay, just as we have taken the promises to pay of dozens of men never home who have proven themselves not any more honest than Rubini, and no doubt our neighbors of the Journal & American and Monitor, can find many Rubinis on their books who will pay about as soon as Signor Rubini will.—Strangers should be as honorably treated as other scamps—to publish all would be dealing out justice impartially.

Y. M. C. A. Meeting.

On Friday evening last a large and very interesting public meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association of this place, was held in the Presbyterian church. The meeting was addressed by delegates from the Williamsport Convention of that body, including three of the delegates from the Huntingdon Association. The young speakers acquitted themselves creditably, and the tenor of their remarks indicated that their attendance at the Williamsport Convention had infused new vigor in them to work for their Master's glory. Each one felt how little he had been doing, and was resolved to do more in the future, and inspired by this motive he talked earnestly and feelingly to the audience, although we doubt if any of them ever before spoke to so large an audience under like circumstance. The audience was pleased, and no doubt many retired wishing God speed for the Christian Associations of young men, throughout our land, and more particularly for our own.

The names of the young gentlemen who addressed the meeting were:—Messrs. Thos. Cree, Rabe, Jennings, and Porter, President of the Y. M. C. A., of Pittsburgh, and J. S. Blair, Esq., Dr. R. R. Weistling, and G. B. Armitage, Esq., President of the Y. M. C. A., of Huntingdon.

Sad Poisoning Case.

We learn that two gentlemen residing in Germany Valley, in the lower part of the county, were poisoned one day last week by eating some kind of root which they thought was spikenard. They found the root in a fence corner of a field in which they had been plowing. Shortly after eating it, one of them, Mr. David Bowman became troubled with violent pains in the stomach and bowels. He called for water, and having drank it immediately expired. The other man, whose name we have not learned, was likewise attacked, but drank milk, which acted as an antidote for the poison, and he recovered.

—We have learned, since writing the above, through a correspondent, that the accident happened on Thursday last, and that the poisonous root was aconite, or wolf's bane. The deceased was one among the most respected farmers in Shirley township, and his unfortunate demise has cast a gloom over that whole community.

Valuable Farms for Sale.

Three valuable farms, situate in different parts of Blair county, are offered for sale, as will be seen by reference to our advertisements. The first is a splendid tract of land, containing 300 acres, in Canoe valley, and is near the railroad, and other conveniences. It is in a high state of cultivation, and has thereon some valuable improvements. Farm No. 2 contains 140 acres of good limestone land, situate in Woodberry township. It has some valuable improvements. Farm No. 3 is situated near Hollidaysburg, and contains 160 acres. Good soil, good apple orchard, and brick house, and other improvements. Altogether these are very valuable farms, and persons desirous of making a good investment should avail themselves of the opportunity, by attending the sale at Hollidaysburg on Wednesday, the 8th of December next. For terms and other particulars read advertisement.

Man Killed.

On Saturday morning last, a man named William Huling, while walking on the railroad track, at the curve near the quarry below town, was struck by an engine of a freight train coming towards town, and thrown with violence against the stone wall, and instantly killed. His head was badly cut, and he received other bodily injuries. It is reported that he was an inmate of the County Poor House, and he had left that institution, and was coming to town, perhaps to earn a livelihood.

Fire.

The house of Benjamin Leonard, about one-fourth of a mile from Three Springs, this county, caught fire from the stove-pipe, last Sunday afternoon, and was entirely consumed. All his goods were saved except three bedsteads, and some flour. Mr. Leonard has sustained a heavy loss, as he is a poor man, and had just recently purchased the property.

When will people learn to examine the stove pipes in their houses, more thoroughly? Every year at this season we record such calamities, all owing to a want of carefulness.

Leg Broken.

On last Friday afternoon, Mr. Jos. Summers of this place, while digging clay in the brick yard of Mr. Frank Hefright, had his leg broken several inches below the knee by a five feet bank giving way and falling upon him.

[COMMUNICATED.]

MESSRS. EDITORS:—The Directors of the Poor of our county met on Tuesday last, at which time Mr. Smith, the new Director, took his seat, in place of Mr. Harmon, whose time expired last month. Mr. H. retires from the office of Director with the approbation of all tax-payers who were acquainted with his strict integrity and his unyielding efforts to keep the expenses of the house at as low a figure as the exigencies of the inmates would permit. He certainly retires with the plaudit, "well done, good and faithful servant," &c.

Your correspondent, in company with the Directors of the Blair county Alms House, was taken through the premises. There you can see almost all kinds of invalids, from the raving maniac to the most submissive; adults who appear to be mere children; old women and men whose ages range from seventy-five to ninety five years, all appearing contented. It was remarked that they appeared much more comfortable than a great many of the taxpayers who contribute to their support. There are about fifty inmates, a number of whom are children, tho' there is scarcely any more noise in the house than in our best regulated families. The rooms from the cellar to the attic appear to be scrupulously clean, and everything in order. The inmates appear to love the affable and ever watchful steward, Mr. John Logan, who treats them with a fatherly care, seeing that the wants of those, who cannot help themselves are attended to, not giving himself rest until all are comfortable in the house The steward appears to be highly esteemed by all who have had any transactions with him in connection with the house. The Directors, appreciating his qualifications, have re-appointed him for another term; and we hope as long as he discharges those arduous duties as he has and is doing, he will be continued.

JAMAICUS.

Shirley twp, Nov. 6.

MECHANICS' WIVES.—It is in the middle ranks of life where we behold woman in all her glory—not a doll to carry silks and jewels; not a puppet to be flattered by profane adoration; admired but not esteemed; ruling by passion, not affection; imparting her weakness, not her constancy, to the sex she would exalt; the source and mirror of vanity—we see her as a wife, partaking the care and cheering the anxieties of her husband; dividing his toils, by her domestic diligence, spreading cheerfulness around her, for his sake; sharing the decent refinements of the world without being proud of them; placing all her joys and happiness in the man she loves As a mother, we find her affectionate, the ardent instructress of the children whom she has tended from their infancy; training them up to thought and virtue, to piety and benevolence; addressing them as rational beings and preparing them to become men and women in their turn. Mechanics' daughters should make the best wives in the world.

Astounding.

Owing to a great rush of the public to the Boot and Shoe store of our friend Mr. John H. Westbrook, in a few short weeks his shelves were completely demoralized and his immense stock of boots and shoes were effectually routed, and they are now adorning the feet of many of our citizens who made the capture. He was of course obliged to buy another stock, and he invites the public to make as many sieges as they choose, as he is determined to keep up the supply at all hazards. His goods are good and cheap. He has a large assortment of leather which he offers at low prices to the trade. Give him a call. 1t.

☞ We have often watched the course of so many distressed, emaciated and forlorn dyspeptics, or wornout and prostrated females, who have taken a new lease of life, and gradually received vigor, strength, health, and the power of social pleasure from the effects of Plantation Bitters, that we are not surprised at the testimonials daily received. If it is a pleasure to do good in the world, how full must be the measure of the Proprietors of these celebrated Bitters.

MAGNOLIA WATER.—Superior to the best imported German Cologne, and sold at half the price. tf

Wesley's Dramatic Troupe.

This troupe performed several nights last week to full houses in Yenter's Hall. Their performances were good, and the selections comprise the thrilling, laughable and interesting. They will perform Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of this week, and we would advise all lovers of the drama to drop in and see their performances, in Yenter's Hall. Admission 25 cents, reserved seats 50 cents. Performance to commence at 8 o'clock.

DEDICATION.—The Bethel Presbyterian church at Shavers Creek Bridge, three miles above Petersburg, will be dedicated on Tuesday, 16th of Nov at ten and-a-half o'clock, a. m. Rev. S. T. Lowry, of Philadelphia, will preach the sermon, and many other ministers will be present.

DIED,

In York, Pa., on the 28th of October, 1869, WILLIAM WELDH, aged 19 years and 8 months.

Will was a former resident of this borough and his death has caused deep sadness among his friends. He was an industrious and honest boy, and would if he had been spared, been a useful man. Rest in peace.

Who cast her eyelids down—
"I've heard it said to-day, my friend,
Smith got his goods from Brown!"

Says Gossip Four to Gossip Five,
Who blazed it round the town:
"I've heard to-day such shocking news—
Smith stole his goods from Brown."

The Globe.

HUNTINGDON, PA.

For the Farmer.

Potatoes, a century ago, were not cultivated to any extent in Britain.—In Scotland, many of the good folks declared that, as potatoes were not mentioned in the Bible, it was a good and sufficient reason why they should not be cultivated. But a scarcity of grain and the good qualities of the potato were two powerful arguments in favor of this esculent, and prejudice and superstition were overcome.

Tuberoses should be placed in a warm room, during winter, where the temperature is seldom below 45°, for when the bulbs are kept in a cool place the center or undeveloped flower stem is very liable to decay, although the outside of the bulb will remain sound.

Farmers should not throw away their potato-stalks. The stems and leaves of the potato are very valuable for manure.

Lettuce and spinach can be raised nearly a month earlier by planting the seeds late in the autumn, and covering them an inch. The early frosts will not injure them.

Water in which potatoes have been boiled possesses a poison fatal to lice. Wash the cattle freely, and as their hides dry, comb them with a curry-comb.

Fallen leaves contain not only the vegetable matter, but the earthy salts, lime, potash, etc., needed for the next season's growth and fertility, and that too exactly in the proportion required by the very tree and plant from which they fall. Save them.

POINTS IN SHEEP.—An English authority gives the following description of the points a South-down sheep should present:

"The neck should be of medium length, thin toward the head, but enlarging toward the shoulders, where it should be broad and high, and straight in its whole course above and below; chest wide, deep, and projecting between the fore-legs, indicating a good constitution and a disposition to thrive; the shoulders on a level with the back and not too wide above, but bowing outward from the top to the breast, leaving room for the springing rib behind; the ribs coming out horizontally from the spine, extending far backward, and the last rib projecting more than the others; the back flat from the shoulders to the setting on of the tail; the loin broad and flat, the rump long and broad, the hips wide; the space between them and the last rib on either side as narrow as possible; and the ribs presenting a circular form like a barrel."

Thanksgiving Day.

Washington, Oct. 3.—By the President of the United States of America

A PROCLAMATION.

The year which is drawing to a close has been free from pestilence; health has prevailed throughout the land; abundant crops reward the labors of the husbandman; commerce and manufactures have successfully prosecuted their peaceful paths; the mines and forests have yielded liberally; the nation has increased in wealth and in strength; peace has promoted and its blessings have advanced every interest of the people in every part of the Union; harmony and fraternal interest restored are obliterating the marks of past conflict and estrangement, burdens have been lightened, means have been increased, civil and religious liberty are secured to every inhabitant of this land, whose soil is trod by none but freemen. It becomes a people thus favored to make acknowledgment to the Supreme Author from whom such blessings flow, of their gratitude and their dependence, to render praise and thanksgiving for the same, and devoutly to implore a continuance of God's mercies.

Therefore, I, Ulysses S. Grant, President of the United States, do recommend that Thursday, the 18th of November next, be observed as a day of thanksgiving and of praise and prayer to Almighty God, the Creator and Ruler of the universe. And I do further recommend to all the people of the United States to assemble on that day in their accustomed places of public worship, and to unite in the homage and praise due to the bountiful Father of all mercies, and in fervent prayer for the continuance of the manifold blessings He has vouchsafed to us as a people.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed, this 5th day of October, A. D. 1869, and of the independence of the United States of America the ninety-fourth.

By the President: U. S. GRANT.
HAMILTON FISH, Secretary of State.

The President of the United States having issued the foregoing proclamation, I do most earnestly advise that the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, for the reasons therein given, strictly observe its recommendations.

Given under my hand and the seal of the Commonwealth, at Harrisburg, this 25th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine, and of the independence of the United States the ninety-fourth.

JOHN W. GEARY.

CELEBRATED

The large and increasing sales of these

We were satisfied that they would be appreciated here as elsewhere, and that the reality of the advantages offered to wearers of our beautiful lenses viz.: the ease and comfort, the assured clear and distinct exercise of improvement of the sight, and the brilliant assistance they give in all cases, were in them-selves an argument on trial, that the result could not be otherwise than it has, in the almost general adoption of our CELEBRATED PERFECTED SPECTACLES by the residents of this locality

With a full knowledge of the value of the assertion, we claim that they are the most perfect optical aids ever manufactured. To those needing Spectacles, are afford at all times an opportunity of procuring the best and most desirable.
